New Market Now Under Construction

Chain market operators of Northern California... newly entrenched in Southern California. Gardena Basket stores, a corporation composed of young Niseis, has cracked open three markets; one in Torrance, one in Buena Park and the third in Fullerton. Their fourth and largest unit will be located in the Gardena Town and Country being constructed by Home State Investment company and will have approximately ten thousand square feet of shopping area. The amazing thing about this is that this expansion has occurred within the last six months' period in Southern California. Their success reads like a fairy tale. Starting with nothing in Sacramento, they took over an almost bankrupt produce stand and made it into a profitable business. Not content with produce stalls, their next move was to take over complete operations of a super market. At the present time their Sacramento holdings consist of two large super markets plus their Southern California operations. The key to their success has been spelled out by their President Thomas S. Kunibe: "We haven't much money but we work long and hard and with plenty of enthusiasm." George Murata, first vice-president; George Orite, second vice-president; Ben Kunibe, secretary; Henry Kunibe, treasurer, and Ray Tanihara and Bill Tamura are members of the corporation.
